

To Whom it may Concern:

I recently subscribed to XM Satellite Radio because their programming provides the services I want to hear without interruptions from unsolicited (by me, anyway) advertisers. In my opinion, having government restricting their broadcasts in any way is a violation of their constitutional rights, and a slap in the face of free trade. The American brand of capitalism keeps for-profit business in check quite effectively without government interference. When their programming causes them to loose paying customers, their format will change.

Until then, the NAB should pursue worthwhile causes like cleaning up the airwaves that are available to the easily influenced youth and children of our country who have unrestricted access to both positive and negative programming spewed forth indiscriminately by the member stations of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Thank you for acknowledging and supporting my rights and those of other XM Satellite subscribers and supporters.
